There seems to be an easy road to everywhere and everything except to emission in painting, sculpture, and architecture. That there is no royal path in these directions every year a dedemy Enhibition exemplifies. Lot not be a nevelist, to write "poetry," to make a living by journalism and even to write plays. Acting is the essiest to write plays. Acting is the essiest to be nothing more than yourself, you can make what is regarded so a "success" on the stage. I do't eay that in regard to literature and journalism the many books now gubbleshed to teach the work assure the "good living" they promise, but they put the novice up to useful "tricks of the trade." The aim of the expert and the teacher is to make difficult things easy. The poet who laments that bridges and reliways and now machines to hasten the methods of travel do not tend to the pictureque, finds even Charon's ferry a mismomer in these days of changs. Time was when he calmly rowed o'er the Styx each sorrowing shade, making possible song of bird, hearding his treasure on each trip he made, and believing that he never would lack occupation.

A Pretty Story.

There is a pretty, if apocryphal, story told of Joans Heinrich von Dannecker, the German sculptor, which is a lesson in patience and approximations. The sculptor had worked two years upon his statue of Christ, when he called into his studio a little sirf, and pointing to the figure, asked Who is that? The child-neighbour spiled, "A great person." The artist arrack away disheartened. "I have alled," he said, "I'll begin anew." shied, "A great person." The artist and away disheartened. "I have sed," he said, "I'll begin anew." Se upon two more years elapsed, the again exhibited the result to little neighbour. "Who is it y" he asked. After a long, silent e, and bowing her head in reverence said, "It is suffer little children come unto Me;" and the soulptor s satisfied.

Books, Publishere, and Readers.

Mr. Robert Marvton, in his "Publishers' Circular," has been discussing the question whether the leaves of books should be out. It is astonishing how long we, in England, can go see doing a foolish thing, all the time country to the leaves of books should be cut, thet is books to be read. Even books that are more for show than us, editions de luxe, can rejoice in their rough edges and all the other artistic characteristics of binding sufficient for hibliographic distinction, and yet be cut. As for the novels and essays, books of travel, reminiscences, possip, and so forth, to leave the reader to cut the leaves is simple foily. A still worse thing than leaving books unout, however, is the barbarism of wirestiching. This is one of the grave faults of certain magazines which shall be namelese: one does not desire to run amok against publications which from other points of view are admirable. But it is surely nothing less than barbarous to engage fine writers, famous illustrators, elever engravers, and excellent paper and eday the first Semi Federal Parliament of Australia was shall in formally opened by the Heir Apparent to the British Crown. We live in so King's to the British Crown. We live in so king's coa and daughter-in-law browded arr age, in an age when events press upon wire and cable so thick and so fast, that we are not always able to appreciate the relative importance of this or that particular incident in the passing pageant of the world's history as it is revealed to us from day to day by the newspaper Press. Nevertheless the least leisured and the least points to the lowering of the least leisured and the least points to the lewering of the least leisured and the least properties and receipt learning the least leisured and receipt learning of the least leisured and the least leisured and receipt learning the least least leisured learning the least least leisured learning the least le as it is revealed to us from day to us by the newspaper Press. Nevertheles the least leisured and the least thoughtful among us should pause an think when he reads the account of such an event as that. Never before has the history of the British Empire afforded so visible a sign and symbol at once of the grandeur of the British sent to his Australian subjects by their Sovereign and ours on this auspicious occasion. There is no jealousy in the admiring gase which is cast upon the young giant of the Antipodes from the island cradle of the race. We are proud of our offspring, and we bid them God speed on their way as a nation with unalloyed satisfaction. From the bottom of our hearts we can all join in the hopeful cry— "Advance, Australia".

LIBERTY, LICENSE, AND SEDITION.

SEDITIONe

It is the patience of John Bull that so often breeds trouble for him. Sedition is one of the worst of crimes.
The liberty of the Press and freedom of speech are so broad and deep that the man who outrages either should smart for it. For libelling of private individuals he is punished.
The law knows how to deal with him, and swarwhody is content. The and everybody is content. The sfender challenges a jury of his ountrymen, and getting the worst of tainwers down into mild acceptance, and there an end. But the inciter to chellion, the sedition monger, the nember of Parliament who takes an ath of allegiance to the Throne and eliberately breaks it, the intriguing itisen who lends aid and escouragement to the enemy, and the journaint ho attacks the honour of public seriants and slanders the King, it has seen the custom to

THE KING AND THE SHAMROCK.

Happily for the peace of Ireland the present time is singularly incorporations for the operations of the sociations, the disleyal, and the scatter of the disleyal, and the scatter of the late Charles Reade, aptly adopted for the occasion by "The Pall Mall Gasette." As for the King, not yet out of mourning for his illustrious mother, the beloved of all people, he has always held a comfortable place in the affections of the Irish race. With their tender memories of the womanly graces of his at warnings an inseed an eccasion missed an eccasion in the property of the pr Irish, English, Scotch and Colonial commanders for the honour of the simperial flag; and everything the points to the lowering of the social and racial barrier between England and Ireland—so low that one may hardly trace its existence. And this is the time chosen for raising the standard of revolt by the Irish party in the House of Commons, not with the pluck and courage of sincers must be succeeded by the provided way getting behind their "privileges," declining to make themselves responsible for the seditions brutality of their "recognised organ," though practically defending it; for those who even indirectly, support a crime, cannot be con-

> The forthcoming Naval and Military Exhibition, which is to be opened at the Crystal Palace by Earl Roberts on May 25, is designed to commemorate the Jubilee of the Great Exhibition of 1851. The opening ceremony will have additional interest attaching to 15, from the fact that on the same occasion Lady Roberts will unveil the late Mr. Batter equestrian statue of her distinguished husband. The figures on the base of the statue representing the distinction of being the only equetrian statue to Earl Roberts in the country. The Exhibition will be fount to be of very wide scope, embracing every kind of exhibit which illustrate the history and present developmen of Naval and Military science. The Historical Loan Collection of Picture and Belies and Autographs will be especial interest.

His Majesty has shown his interest in the Exhibition by graciously extending his practical help to the work of the Council in their task of securing a good collection of suitable exhibits for the Historical and Loan sections. The King has lent some exceptionally interesting exhibits, including the Jubice offerings to Quern Victoria from the Royal Navy and Marines. The Loris Commissioners of the Admiralty in Secretary of Secretary countrymen, and getting the worst of it simusers down into mild acceptance, and there an end. But the inciter to reveal lien, the sedition- memorar, member of Parliament who takes an oath of aliegiance to the Throne and deliberately breaks it, the intriguing citizen who lends aid and escouragement to the enemy, and the journaist who attacks the honour of public servants and alanders the King, it has been the custom to let pass sect free, except for the scorn of honest men. This does not hurt the hidebound terroriest, who is looking for his reward in the approval of England's bitterest foes, and in subcerpitions from Irish dupss in America to maintain a rebellious organisation against the subconding method of the Enhibition will be well worthy tooming Enhibition will be well worthy to pupper that the forther oming in a subcerpitions from Irish dupss in America to maintain a rebellious organisation against

TALK OF THE PEOPLE.

Sunday Morning.

If a House can be kept for the purpose, a resolution for limiting the inner compiled by spacehes will be discovered in the Commons on Tuesday next, and will, I hope, be carried. The proposal is that an one shall be allowed to speak more than twice an any one amendment in Committee, and commons on the House shall on Committee or in the House, shall on Committee or in the House, shall on Committee or in the House, shall on the code of minutes in length. Ministers, each members in charge of a bill or a motion are to be exceed to minute in length. Ministers, the continuation of Lanca and the code of ministers, and members in charge of a bill or a motion are to be except from these restrictions, and, with that provision, I think the proposal will commend itself to all who desire to see the House of Commons delivered from the fixed of habible in which its business is now authomated.

Of course, you understand if the resolution were carried on Tuesday night it would have no immediate office. To have that it must be one of the control of the cont is hand on the lines suggested, and so give us the greatest Parliamentary reform of the last 50 years. No improve the hange, for one may be perfectly overinn that, unless he is introducing a Budget or something of that kind, what a man cannot say in 20 minutes be will never be able to say at all.

The Irish Nationalists affect to tink that Mr. Wynaham has planted for their hands by suppressing the nile scurrileus, and obscene libel which need the peapers which supports them published on the King. I have seen that libel, and all I can say in that amore abominable and disgusting outmage I never saw in print before, and lope never to see again. If it had concerned a orbiter instead of a King it must have been suppressed all the same, and Mr. Wynaham took be some, can Mr. Wynaham took be

THE DEMANDS OF THE POWERS. A COLLECTIVE NOTE.

Peking, May 7.—The Ministers to-day decided to address a Collective Note to China, informing har that the amount of the Joint, indemnity has been fixed at 450,000,000 tasin, and asking her to state by what methods she proposes to meet the payments.— Renter.

REPORTED IMPORTANT

NEFORTED IMPORTANT
PROPOSALS.

New York, May 9.—Mr. Rockhill cabled to the State Department yeaterday, easy "The Globe" correspondent, that the aggregate indemnity claims of the Powers amount to 337 million dollars, and that there is apparently no prospect whetaver of the claims being reduced. He states that the Chinese Government prepose to open to the trade of the world not only Manchuria, but the whole Empire, and that the proposal is made in the bope that it will induce the Powers to curtail their indemnity demands.

FEARS OF A RENEWED

FEARS OF A RENEWED RISING.

Beuter's Ageacy is informed that a feeling of apprehension cults among the missionary societies working in North China that a renewal of outrages and disturbances is to be feared at an early date. Despatches lately received from various quarters indicate a growing feeling of anxiety among the nature Ohristians, who have for some time part been warning the missionaries that the Chinese are only waiting the opportunity offered by any diminution of the foreign military forces to attack foreigners, more especially in 780 OUT-LINE DISTRICTS.

It will be remembered that it was first through missionary sources that warning were conveyed of the imminent danger of the "Boxar" morewant. It is understood that the foreign diplematic body in Peking have been warned. Récent missionary letters indicate that outnide the districts really dominated by foreign troops the greatest destitution and unreet exists. Brigandags is fearfully common, and, in fact, the Chinese themselves are unable to travel, much less Europeans. The anti-foreign feeling is described as being more intense than ever.

For more than three conturies and a half the yellow-stockinged lade of Christ's Hospital have been one of the features of the London streets, and there can be few Londoners who have rot at some moment or other auddenly paused, and leaving the quickly flowing tide of life to pass by, gased through the tall iron railings in New-gate-street at the games of bare-headed young England in blue caseocks. True, other ancient cities possess exhools where the lade still retain the contume of the time of our last Edward, but the famous St. Mary Redoliffe at Bristol covers its youngsters' heads with small espa-one of which was worn by the ill-fated Chatterton. Indeed, so late as the time of Leigh Hunt the Christ Hospital Boys were not hatthes as at present, for in the words of that talented writer, "our dress was of the coarsest and quaintest kind, but was respected out of doors, and is no. DUKE OF CORNWALL'S GERECH.

The Federal Parliament was opened on Thursday by the Dake of Cornwall. It was a brilliant ceremony, at least 12,000 people were gathered in the Exhibition Building. The Duke of Cornwall said:

Gentlemen of the Sonate, and Gentlemen of the Mouse of Representatives. My beloved and deeplylamented grandmother, Queen Vioticia, had desired to mark the importance of the opening of this, the first Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia, and to manifest her apecial interest in all that concerns the welfare of her leyal subjects in Australia by granting to me a Special Commission had been duly signed before the sad event which has plunged the whole Empire in mourning, and the King, my dear father, fully sharing the me a Special Commission had been duly signed before the sad event which has plunged the whole Empire in mourning, and the King, my dear father, fully sharing the me a special Commission had been duly signed before the sad event which has plunged the whole Empire in mourning, and the King, my dear father, fully sharing the me a special Commission had been duly signed before the sad event which has plunged the whole Empire in mourning, and the King, my dear father, fully sharing the select to them. Although his Majesty stated on the occasion of his opening his first the same of the leyalty and devotion which prompted the generous aid afforded by all the Colonies in the South African war, both in its earlier and more recent stages, and of the sense of the leyalty and devotion which prompted the generous aid afforded by all the Colonies in the South African war, both in its earlier and more recent stages, and of the sense of the leyalty and devotion which prompted the generous aid afforded by all the Colonies in the South African war, both in its earlier and more recent stages, and of the sense of the leyalty and the colonies which the colonies in
